

Ana M. Luszczynska is an Associate Professor and Chairperson in the English Department at Florida International University. Her research and teaching interests include literary theory, phenomenology and deconstruction, and 20th and 21st century U.S. Latin and African-American literatures and cultural productions. She has published work in journals such as The New Centennial Review and Philosophy and Social Criticism, and her monograph, The Ethics of Community, was published in 2012 with Bloomsbury Press.

Alessandro Vescovi is an Associate Professor in the Department of modern languages, University of Milano, where he teaches Anglophone Literatures. He is part of the advisory boards of literature and Indology journals and series. He has published monographs, including one on Amitav Ghosh (Firenze, Le lettere, 2012), and articles on Indian writing in English (including authors like Narayan, Naipaul, Ghosh, Desai, Lahiri, and Mukherjee) in several international journals. His latest works include “Emplotting the Postcolonial: Epistemology and Narratology in Amitav Ghosh’s The Calcutta Chromosome,” (Ariel 48.1 January 2017), “The Uncanny and the Secular in Amitav Ghosh’s The Great Derangement and The Hungry Tide” (Simplegadi 17, nov. 2017), “Poetics of the Jungle. The Sundarbans in Emilio Salgari and Amitav Ghosh,” forthcoming. In November 2018, he has been among the organizers of an international conference to celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of the publication of The Shadow Lines. He is currently working on a monograph on post-secularism in Indian fiction.

Elisabetta Sorini holds a degree in English literature from the University of Milano, Italy. Her research areas lie in the field of Indian Writing in English.

Binayak Roy teaches at the Department of English, University of North Bengal. His research interests include Literary Theory, Postcolonial Literature, Indian English Novel and the Cinema of Satyajit Ray. He has done his PhD on the novels of Amitav Ghosh. His papers have been published in journals like Postcolonial Text, South Asian Review, Asiatic, Nordic Journal of English Studies, ANQ: A Quarterly Journal of Short Articles, Notes, and Reviews, Journal of Postcolonial Cultures and Societies, Asian Cinema Journal, Film International, Studies in South Asian Film and Media. His article “Exploring the Orient from within: Amitav Ghosh’s River of Smoke” (Postcolonial Text. Vol 9, No. 1, 2014) was included in The Years’ Work of English Studies published by Oxford University Press, 2016.

Om Prakash Dwivedi is Associate Professor of English and Head of the School of Liberal Arts and Human Sciences at AURO University, Surat, India. His areas of research includes postcolonial theory and literature, Indian Writing in English and Cultural Studies. He is the Vice Chair of the international research network, “Challenging Precarity: A Global Network”. He also serves on the advisory board of the international journal, Journal of Postcolonial Writing (London: Routledge).

Syed Haider is Head of Academic Subjects for the International Foundation Year at Royal Holloway, University of London. He is currently working on a monograph on Muslim Modernities on the Hindi Screen and has published most recently an essay on the media coverage of the shootings in Orlando, published in the journal Men and Masculinities. His research interests lie in the cultural industries and the way in which cultural products act as vehicles for the transmission of ideas.